TOOL #13: Board Retreat Read-and-Reflect Worksheets

Prior to your next board retreat, create a “Read-and-Reflect Worksheet” and inspire the board to read one governance book in preparation for your retreat.

What Would Chesterton Read?

Great Boards Read at Least One Book a Year!

“If you were marooned on a desert island and could have only a single book with you, what would you choose? Somebody once asked this question of G. K. Chesterton. Given his reputation as one of the most erudite and creative Christian writers in the first half of the twentieth Christian century, one would naturally expect his response to be the Bible. It was not. Chesterton chose Thomas’ Guide to Practical Shipbuilding.”

He finally had time to develop a marketing plan.

7 Book Options

If you select one of these seven books for your next retreat, distribute the appropriate worksheet, with the book, to each board member. Or, select an alternate governance book and create your own customized worksheet.

- Option 1:

  Owning Up: The 14 Questions Every Board Member Needs to Ask

  by Ram Charan

  With the right composition, a board can create value; with the wrong or inappropriate composition, it can easily destroy value.³

- Option 2:

  Peter Drucker’s Five Most Important Questions: Enduring Wisdom for Today’s Leaders

  by Peter F. Drucker, Frances Hesselbein, and Joan Snyder Kuhl

  Question 2: Who Is Our Customer? On Uber and other disrupters: “Of course, the traditional taxi drivers are outraged, and some cities have banned Uber because it is threatening the well-oiled machine of mediocrity.”⁴

- Option 3:

  Called to Serve: Creating and Nurturing the Effective Volunteer Board

  by Max De Pree

  Effective boards do very good planning, says De Pree. He lists three planning questions and then suggests who must be involved in the planning. “…some people need to be involved, to be blunt, because they are going to pay the bill.”⁵

Option 4:
Lessons From the Nonprofit Boardroom: 40 Insights for Better Board Meetings, Second Edition
by Dan Busby and John Pearson

Lesson 37: Don’t Stretch Credulity With BHAGs and Stretch Goals. “The actual achievement of audacious goals is very uncommon.”

Option 5:
Lessons From the Church Boardroom: 40 Insights for Exceptional Governance
by Dan Busby and John Pearson

Lesson 14: Be Intentional About Your First 30 Minutes. “Does your board meeting need a refresh—so you experience holy moments more frequently?”

Option 6:
More Lessons From the Nonprofit Boardroom: Effectiveness Excellence, Elephants!
by Dan Busby and John Pearson

Lesson 26: Big Rocks, Pebbles, and Sand. Ministry boards have a natural gravitational pull toward issues that should be reserved for staff.

Option 7:
The Council: A Biblical Perspective on Board Governance
by Gary G. Hoag, Wesley K. Willmer, and Gregory J. Henson

Chapter 6: Model: Spiritual Practices for Maintaining a Biblical Mindset
Option 1: Board Retreat Read-and-Reflect Worksheet

MEMO
DATE: May 1, 2020
TO: Board of Directors
FROM: Jane Doe, Board Chair
RE: Preparation for Board Retreat

We are prayerfully looking forward to meeting with all of you at the 2020 Board Retreat. We want our time together to reflect the heart and spirit of Henry Blackaby’s memorable comment, “Find out what God is doing…and then join Him.”

This worksheet is designed to get everyone thinking in advance. We urge you to invest time in prayer and preparation BEFORE the board retreat. Please note this wisdom from Peter Drucker:

“The best way to predict the future is to create it.”
Peter Drucker

✦ Reading Assignment

You have received the book, Owning Up: The 14 Questions Every Board Member Needs to Ask, by Ram Charan. We’ll dig deep into this resource. And we’ll heed this reminder, also from Peter Drucker: “Plans are only good intentions unless they immediately degenerate into hard work.”

Drucker also said that “we now accept the fact that learning is a lifelong process of keeping abreast of change. And the most pressing task is to teach people how to learn.” So…what can we learn that will help us with board governance?

A “Read-and-Reflect Worksheet” is attached to this memo. After you’ve read the book, please jot down your thoughts and then bring the worksheet with you to the board retreat. Thanks! We’re looking forward to seeing how God will lead you in this process.

✦ Why is this important? James M. Kouzes and Barry Z. Posner note in The Leadership Challenge:

“Leaders must challenge the process because systems will unconsciously conspire to maintain the status quo and prevent change.”
“The business landscape has changed. The game has changed. What boards do needs to change as well.”

Ram Charan

From the book’s website: www.ram-charan.com

Your world as a director has suddenly changed. You’ve seen members of other boards take the heat when their companies imploded. The managements of Lehman Brothers, Bear Stearns, Merrill Lynch, and Washington Mutual clearly failed, but so did their boards. Now the board of every company beset with problems is coming under scrutiny.

The pressure is on. Your board must own up to its accountability for the performance of the corporation. Governance now means leadership.

Boards must change their modus operandi to address the new and complex issues that are emerging. These include:

- Ensuring liquidity in the context of the global financial crisis
- Setting CEO performance targets in a very uncertain economy
- Assessing strategy and enterprise risk under extreme volatility

So what should boards do now? What should they be talking about in their meetings and executive sessions? What decisions must they make? How assertive must they be regarding company priorities and operating goals?

In Owning Up, business advisor and corporate governance expert Ram Charan answers these and other burning questions on the minds of directors and business leaders. He describes best practices that are emerging in boardrooms he has observed firsthand. And he provides practical recommendations on a range of issues, from compensation to dealing with external constituencies. Wisely attuned to the human side, he confronts the need for some boards to refresh their composition and for others to rebalance their board dynamics.

Directors, CEOs, general counsels, and operating executives will find here the guidance they need to meet the new and rising standards for corporate governance in this demanding business environment.

You have received the book, Peter Drucker’s Five Most Important Questions, by Peter Drucker, Frances Hesselbein, and Joan Snyder Kuhl. We’ll dig deep into this resource. And we’ll heed this reminder, also from Peter Drucker: “Plans are only good intentions unless they immediately degenerate into hard work.”

Peter Drucker on Self-Assessment:

“Self-assessment is the first action requirement of leadership: the constant resharpening, constant refocusing, never really being satisfied.”

“The self-assessment process is a method of assessing what you are doing, why you are doing it, and what you must do to improve an organization’s performance.”

2 Options:

☑ Option 1. Read the entire book (and the commentary on each question)— and you may win a Chick-fil-A card! You’ll especially enjoy the interesting color commentary by millennials in each chapter.

☑ Option 2. Read just Peter Drucker’s comments on the five questions (less than 35 pages).

❑ Why Self-Assessment? (pages 1-6)
❑ Question 2: Who Is Our Customer? (pages 19-23)
❑ Question 3: What Does the Customer Value? (pages 35-38)
❑ Question 4: What Are Our Results? (pages 47-52)

Introductory Critical Questions:

Peter Drucker makes a very strong statement at the beginning of the book. (page 2) Do you agree with him?

Although I don’t know a single for-profit business that is as well managed as a few of the nonprofits, the great majority of the nonprofits can be graded a ‘C’ at best. Not for lack of effort; most of them work very hard. But for lack of focus, and for lack of tool competence. I predict that this will change, however, and we at the Drucker Foundation [now the Frances Hesselbein Leadership Institute] hope to make our greatest impact in these areas of focus and tool competence.
Is it time to re-visit our mission statement? Measure our mission statement against this “Top-10 List” below:

Bonus Question:
Does our mission statement...fit on a t-shirt?

MISSION:

Skip LeFauve: “Having a well-defined mission gives leaders a way to resolve competing interests and make better decisions.”⁷

Frances Hesselbein: “Revisit the mission every three years, each time refine or amend it so that it reflects shifts in the environment and the changing needs of the customers.”⁸

⁶ These 10 questions are adapted from Peter Drucker, The Five Most Important Questions Self-Assessment Tool: Participant Workbook and Leader to Leader Institute (San Francisco: Jossey-Bass, 2010), 12.

Question 2: Who is our customer?

Peter Drucker distinguishes between “primary” and “supporting” customer and says that your primary customer is “the person whose life is changed through your work.”

In your opinion, who is our primary customer?

Question 3: What does our customer value?

Research is a key part of discerning what our customers value. What would you like to know about our primary customer that we don’t know today?

“It is your customers’ expectations you are trying to meet, not your own.”

Berhnard Schroeder

Question 4: What are our results?

In all of his writings, Drucker talks about planned abandonment—“sloughing off yesterday.” What are some of the sacred cows or dead horses we should abandon in order to make room for our most critical priorities and the achieving of God-honoring results?¹⁰

Optional Homework

John Pearson, author of Mastering the Management Buckets: 20 Critical Competencies for Leading Your Business or Nonprofit, begins his book (the first “bucket” or core competency) with “The Results Bucket.”

Optional:

Then . . . please jot down any insights that would apply to our present and future situation.

Insights:

> “Dakota tribal wisdom says that when you discover a dead horse, the best strategy is to dismount.”¹¹

Elmer Towns and Warren Bird

¹⁰ Read more about sacred cows and dead horses in “Lesson 23: Focus on Mission Impact and Sustainability” in Lessons From the Nonprofit Boardroom by Dan Busby and John Pearson.

Question 5: What is our plan?

Peter Drucker says that an effective plan involves five elements:
- Abandonment
- Concentration
- Innovation
- Risk taking
- Analysis

In your opinion, which one of the five elements (above) are we most competent in? Why?

Which one element (above) needs more of our focus? Why?

Thanks for praying and preparing for our important time together!

“Is there anyone here who, planning to build a new house, doesn’t first sit down and figure the cost so you’ll know if you can complete it? If you only get the foundation laid and then run out of money, you’re going to look pretty foolish. Everyone passing by will poke fun at you: ‘He started something he couldn’t finish.’”

by Max De Pree

- Contrarian wisdom!
- Just 91 pages!

Do it yourself version!

☑ Step 1: Inspire a board member to create a customized “Read-and-Reflect Worksheet” that aligns with the current and specific needs of your board.

☑ Step 2: Review the worksheet formats in Option 1 and Option 2—and create your own for Called to Serve.

☑ Step 3: Read the book review and/or ECFA blog posts on Called to Serve and select various questions and emphases that address your board’s unique situation.

Or...try this at your board retreat:

☑ Assign a chapter from Called to Serve to every board member. Sprinkle the 5-minute or 10-minute chapter reports throughout the board retreat agenda. Use a timer with a buzzer and award gift cards to those who finish on time!

“A good board will measure the appropriate inputs as well as the outputs. Failure to measure what matters damages our future.”¹²

A Contrarian’s Wisdom: Called to Serve

So when I had a five-minute conversation with consultant and author Dave Coleman about Max De Pree’s 91-page contrarian gem, it fed my board governance book-addicted soul. I love this book and the title: Called to Serve: Creating and Nurturing the Effective Volunteer Board.14

Contrarian Max De Pree writes:

- “There is a reason why this is a small book. We want it to be useful, but not a burden.”
- “We believe good people need reminders and an occasional nudge, not a sermon.”
- “A good board will measure the appropriate inputs as well as the outputs. Failure to measure what matters damages our future.”
- “My friend Jim Beré...once told me that he would serve only on boards that had hard-working executive committees.”

Commenting on board committees, De Pree notes the story of the English visitor who watched his first American football game and observed,

> “The game combines the two worst elements of American culture—violence and committee meetings.”

Rather than penning a 300-page snoozer, De Pree crafts a coaching conversation (a series of letters) with a young leader and his first CEO/board relationship. It’s easy reading and the short epistles are extraordinary.

---

Board service, writes De Pree, should be “demanding in the best sense of the word.” He lists three other characteristics of great boards:

- Lively
- Effective
- Fun to serve on

CEOs will appreciate every page: “…the chief responsibility of boards is to be effective on behalf of the organization.” He adds, “Effective boards, in a nutshell:

- remember the long view,
- remember that the president and staff are human,
- and do the work of the board…”

Plus this:

“Most of the work of the board takes place through the implementation of an agenda.”

More contrarian pokes-in-the-ribs:

- “Many high-priced consultants will tell you to have the shortest possible mission statement. I don’t happen to think that is such a great idea.”
- “I feel that the closer an organization comes to being defined as a movement, the closer it will come to fulfilling its potential.”
- “I’m a great believer that management should be invited into the board’s world but that the board should not go into management’s area.”
- “The chairperson should not permit anyone to read to the board.”

Max De Pree served as board chair of Fuller Seminary—and get this—the seminary honored him with the establishment of the Max De Pree Center for Leadership in 1996. His day job was with Herman Miller, the office furniture company, where he served as president from 1980 to 1987 (and as a board member until 1995). His book, Leadership Is an Art, has sold more than 800,000 copies. (See also Leading Without Power: Finding Hope in Serving Community.)

Effective boards do very good planning, says De Pree. He lists three planning questions and then suggests who must be involved in the planning. “. . . some people need to be involved, to be blunt, because they are going to pay the bill.”

He balances the CFO’s involvement in planning with this: “Planning by the board ought always to include the chief financial officer, a bringer of necessary reality to the process. Of course, the chief financial officer should never have a role that stymies the vision. Some realities have priority over numbers.”

Oh, my—I could fill a year’s worth of eNewsletters with his contrarian coaching!

- “Loyalty by itself is never sufficient. You always have to link loyalty and competence.”
- “When an organization demands true leadership and the results justify the time and energy, good boards respond with gusto.”
- “Another crime, it seems to me, is to give really good people poor leadership.”
Trust me—this book will not disappoint. All 91 pages are packed with power. Perfect snippets for your “10 Minutes for Governance” segment at every board meeting. (You do that, right?) I’ll close with a story.

Addressing the importance of creating time in the agenda for board reflection, he writes, “I remember the story, perhaps apocryphal, about President Eisenhower and his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles. Dulles was an inveterate traveler. He seemed to be on the go continuously. At one point during the discussion of a serious problem, President Eisenhower said to him,

‘Don’t just do something, stand there.’

Sometimes it’s easier to be busy than to take the time to be reflective.”

Your Weekly Staff Meeting Questions:

1. Max De Pree writes, “… a board can be only as good as management will help it become.” So how effective is your organization’s CEO and senior team in helping the board be effective—without inappropriately doing the board’s work?

2. De Pree recommends that “Key proposals and issues like building programs or fund drives should always come to the board through its committees at least twice.” Think back for three years—has this been your practice?

“I love this quote from the U.S. Navy Seals, ‘Under pressure you don’t rise to the occasion, you sink to the level of your training. That’s why we train so hard.’

By being intentional about ongoing board member education, organizations are investing in their own preparation to ‘rise to the occasion’ that will inevitably emerge—at the least expected moment.”

Kent Stroman

Excerpted from Lesson 38:

Great Boards Delegate Their Reading

Deputize a “Leaders Are Readers Champion.”

We’ve observed that there are several best practices that learning boards embrace:

- Learning boards feature brief book reviews at every board meeting. Great boards delegate their reading. Every board member doesn’t need to read every governance book. However, with advance planning and motivation, the board chair can inspire individual board members to read and report on a helpful governance book. Some boards set the iPhone timer on the book reviewer for four or five minutes. If the reviewer concludes the report before the bell rings, he or she earns a Chick-fil-A card!

- Learning boards inspire everyone to read the same book prior to the annual board retreat. Select one stimulating book for everyone to read and include a “Read-and-Reflect Worksheet.” Provide three options: Good—read five chapters; Better—read eight chapters; Best—read every chapter. Invite selected board members to share four-minute reviews of their assigned chapters. You’ll be amazed at the preparation! No one wants to be remembered as the unprepared presenter.

- Learning boards deputize a “Leaders Are Readers Champion.” Appoint one board member to keep the “leaders are readers” core value on the front burner. Provide a small budget so he or she can keep abreast of the latest trends, resources, training, books, blogs, videos, toolboxes, and websites that will help your board be lifelong learners.

So…what is “the best governance book” your board should read next? It depends, of course, on your unique situation. As you spiritually discern God’s direction for your ministry, your journey can be enhanced by the books you read (or listen to). Inspire your board to read!

My favorite quotation:

“Is there a ‘glass ceiling’ that impedes God's work in your church? Many smaller churches fail to grow because their boards are populated with pebble-pickers!”

My ONE BIG IDEA or take-away from this lesson:

Our church board must inspire every board member to address “big rocks” during board meetings—what the book calls “substantive Kingdom agenda items”—not the minutiae of “pebbles and sand.” Why? Because “as churches grow, the need for boards to focus on big rocks—multiplies exponentially!”

Insight or implication for our church board:

Our board chair—and all of us—could begin to use this helpful metaphor (big rocks, pebbles, and sand) to keep us focused on the critical agenda topics that ONLY the board can address. We need to remind ourselves—frequently—that when we’re tempted to be doing staff work, we may have the wrong staff in place.

Question for groups of two discussions:

QUESTION: Thinking back over our board meetings for the last 12 months, what percentage of agenda items were “big rocks” compared to pebbles and sand topics? Share one suggestion for moving us towards the big rocks.
